

NEW RIOTS HIT BRIXTON

Britain continues its descent into anarchy as Brixton burns

JUST A WEEK after Home Secretary Michael Howard refused to give resettlement grants to immigrants Brixton was hit with renewed rioting. Mr. Howard had rejected black MP Bernie Grant's request that the Government should match its £35,000 per head grant to help Ulstermen return from abroad with similar payments to ethnic minorities. Mr. Grant says that many blacks - both young and old - want to go home. Ironically Mr. Howard claimed that his refusal was in the interests of good race relations.

An evening demonstration, outside Brixton police station on December 14, heard inflammatory speeches from members of the National Black Caucus, including former leader of Lambeth Council Linda Bellos, and struck-off barrister Rudy Narayan. Narayan was involved in the last major Brixton riots in 1981.

The demonstration was called after the death from heart failure of burglar Wayne Douglas. Douglas had attacked police with knives while resisting arrest, after terrorising the occupants of a flat he robbed in Brixton Way. Evil Douglas died later in a cell.

Towards the end of the demonstration concrete was thrown at police. Groups of rioters, organised with mobile phones, then began to set cars on fire, petrol bombed buildings, and looted shops. In one attack, 50 youths armed with baseball bats smashed their way into a sports shop and stole armfuls of trainers and clothing.

A police motor cyclist, PC John Tisshaw, 39, came close to being killed after being pulled from his machine. An onlooker said the rioters were trying to break his spine with repeated kicks.

Shotgun olasts injured two people, and police armed with semi-automatic carbines and shotguns were seen marching into the area. News of the shootings was largely suppressed for days after.

£1 million in damage was caused before police restored control to the area. Scotland Yard say that a cache of weapons has been hidden in Brixton. Police Commissioner Sir Paul Condon says that there is a strong suggestion that the mob intended to shoot one of his men during the pre-planned riot.

A few days after the riot a meeting of the black group Panther UK called for blacks to arm themselves for a battle against police. The stage at the meeting, held in Brixton Recreation Centre, was decorated with pictures of Bobby Seale, founder of the US terrorist group the Black Panthers.

Threats have been made to track down police officers to their homes, and police admit that public safety can no longer be guaranteed on the streets of Brixton.

JUST A NORMAL DAY! A Brixton local does not even notice a burned out crumpled car after a night's rioting. 'Red sky at night, Brixton's alright' was the wry comment of one national newspaper.

There have been calls for the prosecution of the speakers at the demonstration which led to the riot.

Rudi Narayan had said "Police will not understand until one of them has been killed". Narayan returned to his native Ghana in 1992, but then came back to Britain again in 1994.

One of the other speakers, Linda Bellos (pictured right), has been served with a bankruptcy notice by the High Court after failing to submit VAT returns.

BN says that the meeting held at Brixton Recreation Centre sums up the true state of Britain. A black group calling for guns to be obtained, and used to attack the police, is able to hire a public centre for a meeting.

Just compare that with the experience of the BNP - related in our December issue. When we attempt to hold a peaceful and perfectly legitimate annual rally, a massive police operation, which happily failed, is set in motion to prevent us even meeting.

Britain is now a deeply sick society which makes little pretence at being a democracy.

●Shahid Iqbal, 22, of Small Heath, has been charged with ten counts of attempted murder following the stabbing of ten shoppers and staff at the Netto supermarket in Bordesley Green, Birmingham, on December 29. TV news declined to reveal the identity of the arrested man after the incident - despite its being publicly available. A top news agency revealed the man's identity the same day.

DECOY POLITICS

On page four, we quote from an article, by post-Marxist novelist John Berger, which appeared recently in the Observer. A remarkable article - not so much for its content, which echoes much of what nationalists have long said - but for its appearance in a left-wing newspaper.

The keynote of the politics of the left, during the past century and more, has been the perception that internationalism - defined as the embracing of all peoples in a single enterprise with unified leadership - would unlock a bright new future.

The lure of that vision drew generations of the left, bright-eyed with hope, onto a thousand chilly streets filled with their placards.

Immigration, the destruction of social cohesion, and of our way of life, all was a necessary disposal of barriers to internationalism, and supported by the left.

In one of those ghastly tricks played by history, and for the second time this century, it is now beginning to dawn that the internationalism they worked for is now here - but not in the form they expected.

Most of the intelligentsia in the West believed until quite recently that the Soviet system embodied the building of an internationalist utopia. Some still deny the mistake.

Now what they have worked for, in a quite different way within the West, is revealing itself as yet another mirage. It has been termed the 'long march through the institutions' - the stealthy undermining of society by, for example, gaining control of what is taught in schools, and pitching it to promote social breakdown.

The effect has been to generate so great a degree of demoralisation that society lies defenceless against the forces of the international economy.

The realities of internationalism are, as Berger says, creating a depoliticisation which leaves its victims without a voice. Our mainstream politicians have become empty vessels. "Their speaking heads have become decoys" says Berger.

"No one knows what resisting the global market operation involves, or what form of resistance will work best" he says.

Well! The nationalist movement can claim a little experience in this area. We have been doing what he prescribes for years!

We know from a long and bitter experience about the forced depoliticisation of our society - the attempts to block even the holding of political meetings. (see our last issue)

The irony has been that state and left have been united in depoliticising Britain. The left believed they were building a new politics, as they abused us, but were, in reality, conjurers assistants in calling up the 'decoy politics' of which they now complain.

Enfield now hosts Cypriot war

THREE HUNDRED Turkish Cypriots have demonstrated outside Enfield Civic Centre. Shots were fired from an air pistol during the banner waving protest against Enfield's Greek Cypriot Mayor.

The council is divided along racial lines; between the supporters of Mayor George Savva, and Turkish Cypriots, who say they are incensed by his planting of a tree, in the local Broomfield Park, and in memory of Greeks killed in the 1974 war within Cyprus. The tree has since been vandalised.

Minority Tories on the council said that the mayor is incapable of acting in an unbiased way, and tabled a motion of no confidence. During the subsequent debate, which provoked the demonstration, scenes in the public gallery became so raucous that some people were told to leave by the chairman.

The mayor, during the meeting, assured Turks that he would represent all Enfield's ethnic minorities.

Yet again Britain is host to yet another foreign war imported onto our shores without the slightest permission or approval by the British people. Kurds, Indians, Pakistanis, Bangladeshis, and endless other minorities fight out disputes, which have nothing to do with us, within Britain's cities - sometimes with guns.

As we reported in a recent issue of BN, the next election, if it is close run, could be decided by Kashmir, and the Labour Party's delicate decision on which faction to support within Asian groups in Britain.

The dispute between Turkey and Greece over ownership of Cyprus has nothing to do with us in Britain - Cyprus received its independence nearly forty years ago. The disturbance in Enfield is yet another illustration of the fact that immigrants' main allegiances are to their home countries.

When British people wish to display our flag they are constantly told it is no longer quite right to do so. BN has documented many times instances of local councils telling people that the Union Jack is banned. Yet it is perfectly permissible to fly foreign flags, as in Enfield. It could hardly be made clearer where the people involved see their loyalties as being. (see also page three)

Each group wishes its factional interests to prevail over the others - Britain is just a convenient place to fight it out. Any objection by British people to having all this on their soil is simply countered by screaming 'racist' at anyone who objects, and government no longer even cares.

Yet another foreign dispute imported on to British soil without our consent

ENFIELD IN BRITAIN 1995. Foreign disputes which have nothing to do with Britain are fought out on our streets. Why should we have to stand for it? Is this what we fought the Second World War for?

Britain's growing TB nightmare

TUBERCULOSIS, a disease which many thought had disappeared from Britain, is now reaching pandemic levels in parts of Britain - and in particular the East End of London, Lewisham, Islington, and parts of Manchester. Even more frightening is the fact that a substantial proportion of the strains of the disease are resistant to antibiotics.

A BN correspondent has spoken to a black anaesthetist, and a white doctor, both of whom have worked at Hackney Hospital - and heard their terrifying story.

The black medic said that both TB and hepatitis are "rampant, out of control, and of pandemic proportions". He mentioned in particular the Kingsmead Estate, where people live twenty in a room.

He said that on one occasion an Eritrean woman was hurried out of the hospital after removing bandages from her neck to reveal tubercular sores which could easily infect a whole ward. She was told she would be contacted later.

The white doctor confirmed his colleague's remarks, and said that there was media cover-up of what was happening. Both medics agreed that if the truth were to enter public consciousness there would be "public uproar", and a mass exodus from the area.

Southwark Health Authority said recently that TB in Lewisham, and neighbouring boroughs, was at 'sky-high' levels, with Camberwell and West Lambeth being the worst areas. Only two places in Britain were worse - parts of Islington, and areas of Manchester.

The official figures from the London Chest Hospital are that 450 cases of TB are notified each year within Tower Hamlets, Hackney, and Newham, and that there are 5,000 carriers of the disease.

Jo-Ann Pinney, a nurse from the London Chest Hospital, says of the carriers, however, "We don't know who they are or how many there are."

When the disease becomes active Ms. Pinney tries to trace contacts of the sick person, who have, for example, shared a lavatory or bath.

The tracing and home visits are discreet to avoid public alarm.

BN has been told of a small Yorkshire village in which six people are kept permanently at home while nurses visit them on a daily basis to administer TB drugs. There is now a high immigrant population in the village, but all the identified sufferers are white children. Not a word has appeared in the local newspaper.

'The black medic said that both TB and hepatitis are "rampant, out of control, and of pandemic proportions".'

'If the truth were to enter public consciousness there would be "public uproar" and a mass exodus from the area'.

Two-thirds of the cases seen at the London Hospital are from ethnic minorities. Most acquire the disease in Pakistan and India, and then bring it to Britain.

Medical checks on immigrants arriving at Heathrow consist of non-medically trained immigration officers trying to spot anyone who looks ill. The mildly ill, and carriers, simply walk through ready to infect others within Britain.

Dr. Nabil Jarad, a lecturer at the London Chest Hospital, says that immigrants should be properly checked on entry. BN says that if the Government were to suggest such a thing there would be an outcry about 'racism'.

Carriers have the disease in dormant form. It can become active at any time, but is near impossible to detect until this happens. AIDS and overcrowded housing encourage the disease to become active.

MPs. have been told by the Parliamentary Office of Science and Technology that antibiotic resistant TB derives largely from the Indian sub-continent.

10-15% of the cases seen in East London are antibiotic resistant. In some parts of South-East Asia the figure is 25%.

East End Public Health Director Dr. Bobbie Jacobson offers public reassurance. "We will eventually bring it under control, but it will need a lot of extra resources" says Dr. Jacobson.

That is certainly not a description of the situation with which medical staff, who have spoken privately to this newspaper, would agree.

The usual excuse of 'fighting racism' seems to prevent both proper screening for TB, and also public notification of what is happening. The media in Britain now describe censorship as 'responsible reporting'.

● Ambulance crews all over Britain have been given instructions on precautions to be taken in dealing with Ebola Virus - which is untreatable.

The disease, first identified in Zaire in 1976, is fatal in 90% of cases. Within a few days, it turns the body into a virus-laden mush, and in the last stages induces epileptic seizures in which infected blood is splashed over anyone within range.

The ambulance crew instructions say that "the chance of any spread in the community is so remote that it need not be considered".

This assurance begs the question of why British ambulance crews been issued with detailed instructions on the disease.

Commission for Racial 'Equality' 71% black

THE SHAM of Britain's so-called racial equality policies was graphically displayed recently, when the Commission for Racial 'Equality' revealed that 71% of its staff are black!

The CRE, or perhaps it should be retitled the 'Commission for Black Power', has 212 staff. Just 29% or 62, are white.

The body spends £16 million a year of our money preaching 'equality', but employs 13 times the proportion of black people in Britain.

The official figure is that 5.5% of the UK population, or 3 million, is non-white - not 71%. The real figure is, of course, far higher, with an unknown number of illegal immigrants - probably between one and two million.

Tory MPs. Ann Winterton, and Graham Riddick, have joined with Labour member Lawrence Cunliffe in calling on Home Secretary Michael Howard to "abolish this hypocritical, divisive, and anachronistic organisation". They described the CRE's behaviour as "intolerable".

● Not long ago there were complaints of 'racism' from black accountancy students, who said they were being barred from places as trainee chartered accountants. They offered as evidence the fact that only 13% of trainee jobs went to non-whites.

13% is, of course, over double the proportion of legal immigrants in the population! It is the whites who are being short changed - and who are mostly too frightened to say so openly.

Coolie Britain! £1 an hour

AN OLD FOLK'S HOME in Hull is offering £1 an hour to work all night looking after its residents - including bathing and putting them to bed.

The job is on offer at Alexander's Residential Home for the Elderly (pictured right) in the city's Park Avenue. An unemployed care worker was told he must take the job - advertised at Jobcentres throughout the area - and fears he may have his dole stopped for refusing to fill the vacancy.

The home, owned by manageress Mrs. K. Suri, and medical adviser Dr. H. Suri, is advertised in the local Yellow Pages as offering a 'luxurious family atmosphere'. It costs £196 per week to stay there.

The lucky applicant will work from 8pm. on Saturday evening to 8am. the next morning initially for the generous remuneration of £12! Other shifts will be arranged later.

Other similar homes in Hull offer between £19 and £21 for eight and eleven hour shifts. A trainee pizza chef's job in the city centre offers £3 per hour.

The lucky care worker received a call from the Employment Service telling him to apply. 'It would suit you down to the ground' he was told. When he said he was not interested he was told he was restricting his availability for work.

For once BN can agree with extreme left-wing trade union Unison. Regional Head of Health Terry Foster said: "£1 an hour is an insult. It's the lowest wage I have ever heard of for this type of work. I think its absolutely disgusting. When employers are paying staff £1 an hour, you have to ask how much money they are making."

A spokesperson for the home put the phone down when they were asked to justify the scrooge pay level on offer.

Complaints are beginning to be heard, from the Asian community in Britain, about the effects of a Labour Government introducing a minimum wage. Politicians in the main parties are constantly paying tribute to Asian business in Britain. What isn't mentioned is the pay levels underpinning it.

Any economy can be competitive by working its people for coolie rates. The whole point of building up the British economy after the war was precisely to put aside for ever the poverty seen in the 1930s. - which the 'free market' Tories are now trying to bring back, with plenty of willing allies.

Do you live in a tree?

'NEW AGE TRAVELLERS' protesting about a new road scheme in Newbury are living up trees - and having their dole money delivered right to the foot of their leafy eyries by the Post Office.

Hundreds of the trouble makers - many veterans of attacks on police all over the country at other road protests like those at Twyford Down and the M11 link road in East London - have assembled along the route of the new £70 million bypass near Newbury in Berkshire.

They have built illegal tree top camps, along the eight mile route of the new road, and the Post Office is bending security rules to take DSS hand-outs directly to them. Most of the ne'er do wells never leave the encampments, in case they are evicted.

News of the dole money deliveries has outraged local people, who were already utterly fed up with the scruffy bands of scroungers.

Prospective Tory candidate for Newbury, Richard Benyon, said: "You would not believe how angry the people of Newbury are."

A Tory MP said that the Post Office should be ashamed: "These sort of people have no intention of working" he said. "It's up to the Secretary of State, Peter Lilley, to say that people like you and me should not be subsidising these layabouts."

The 'travellers' have invented fictitious post codes for themselves, and given them to DSS officials to be used on their giro. The Post Office then delivers to ramshackle boxes at the foot of the tree encampments.

One tree dweller told reporters: "I've been involved in revolutionary politics since the 1968 student riots. Once this is over we'll move on to the next battle."

Your dole giro promptly delivered by first class post to your home while you sleep!

BN CURRYWATCH

'Special tonight sir - mould water with your curry'

BN's Currywatch visits West Bromwich this month - home of the Memsahib restaurant in High Street. The Memsahib's owner, Quassam Suleman, told West Bromwich magistrates that he was keen to carry on serving his very special curry to the public, despite being in severe financial difficulty.

The court heard that a customer, who clearly did not appreciate the finer points of curry eating, had complained to local council health inspectors after visiting the Memsahib. Mr. Suleman was told to bring his establishment up to standard, but, after two months, nothing had been done.

Health inspectors found filthy floors and ceilings, cigarette end and mouse droppings around the food store, and mould in water jugs. The hob was also covered in burnt on food, and utensils for bread making were made of an absorbent material, burnt, and covered with grease.

Quassam, who was said to be 'inexperienced', was fined £1,050 plus £1,000 costs after pleading guilty to 14 hygiene charges.

●1995's most shocking 'curryist' attack

Last year will live on in infamy for the shocking 'curryist' attack on hospital patient Philip Hurst. While lying sick and utterly vulnerable in Tameside Hospital, 29-year-old electrician Philip, of Aston-under-Lyme, was refused curry.

Seeing an Asian patient in a near-by bed tucking in to bhaji and poppadums, Mr. Hurst asked for some himself - but was told by a nurse that he could not have any - because he was white!

The hospital said that curry was only for people with strict dietary requirements. "It is expensive and has to be specially cooked at time of request" a spokesman added.

High time, says BN, that white people developed plenty of 'special requirements'!

£300,000 more for 'anti-racism' in Haringey

HARINGEY COUNCIL is planning to spend another £300,000 on boosting its 'anti-racist' activities in schools. The council has so much money available for what are known as Section 11 grants - shameless discrimination in favour of blacks allowed by law - that despite all its efforts it underspent recently.

Two new staff are to be recruited, at £30,000-a-year each, to examine whether support to 'asylum seeker' families is sufficient. BN can predict confidently that the two lucky staff will be black, and that they will say not enough money is being given to immigrants!

Education Director Jacky Tonge said that some ethnic pupils were not receiving a 'full level of support'. £55,000 is earmarked for helping Afro-Caribbean children expelled from school.

●A Leeds School has issued a flag appeal. City of Leeds High School now has pupils of 26 different nationalities - and wants to display the flags of all of them. Scottish pupils opted for independence so they will have their flag. Pupils are being asked to donate the various flags - from Canada, China, Eire, Ethiopia, Germany, France, Holland, Hong Kong, India, Iran, Iraq, Jamaica, Kuwait, Libya, Malaysia, New Zealand, Pakistan, St. Vincent, Saudi Arabia, Scotland, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, England, US and Vietnam. Dear friends

I would first like to say how much I have enjoyed meeting the members of Bengali International at their functions, when they have invited me and my family to be their guests.

With the 17th New Year Festival approaching, I am delighted to be asked again to join with members and friends in celebrating the New Year at Walthamstow Assembly Hall. This is now a firm date in the calendar of events in our multi-cultural Borough, and Bengali International has always opened the doors to as many other faiths and cultures as possible, so the New Year can be shared with those outside the Bengali community.

I am looking forward to meeting many of the new friends I have made who are involved in Bengali International on Sunday 21st May. I am sure we will all have a very happy evening together and the hard work of the organising Committee will be rewarded by an enjoyable and successful Festival.

With best wishes to you all for a Happy New Year and for the continuing success of Bengali International,

Yours Sincerely,

Mayor

PRISON TODAY...

Condoms for perverts

PRISONERS in Bedford Jail (pictured right) are to be given free extra-strong condoms to assist homosexual activity.

They will be given on prescription to any inmate who wants them. Supplies of the condoms, specially designed for homosexual sex, have been delivered to the gaol under a Home Office directive.

A prison source said: "Prisoners will be given reinforced condoms so that they can have sex safely in their cells. It makes perfect sense."

BN says it makes even better sense for homosexuals to avoid AIDS by simply avoiding sex with other men.

PUBLIC BATHS TODAY...

'Gays' terrorise bathers

TERRIFIED LOCALS are fleeing the public steam baths at York Hall in London's East End.

East Enders say the baths are being taken over by homosexuals and becoming a no-go area.

One local, 18-year-old Joe Lloret, said he made a speedy exit and obtained a refund after finding men having sex in the baths. "They were all wearing pink towels" he said.

His mother said: "York Hall used to be a place that was trusted by everyone - you'd take kids there."

Another man, Joey Cooper of Bethnal Green, has called for the baths closure to protect the public. He was thrown against a wall by a pervert, and thought he would be raped. "The ones who wear pink towels are a menace" he said.

"Last week the staff had to hide me in an office because of a gang swearing and acting in a threatening manner. I think there's a real risk of something terrible happening."

Elderly people, who once used the baths for medical conditions like rheumatism, say they now struggle to Romford, and to private clubs.

The council say they are considering installing closed circuit TV. At present there is only one attendant for the entire baths.

Tower Hamlets staged a massive 'gay pride' festival in the local Victoria Park last year. The open space was left wrecked, with huge cost to the public in clearing up.

They now plan to consider holding another 'festival' in 1996 - money is available for this purpose but not for proper supervision in a public bath to protect normal people.

Three life terms for East End serial rapist

JUST A FEW DAYS after the sentencing to life imprisonment of Victor Willoughby, 'The Night Stalker', who raped more than 100 people, another multiple rapist has received three life terms.

Paul Brandy, a crack addict, raped three people after being deported from Canada following a two year sentence for sex assaults. He has a string of convictions for sex offences starting at 16, and was born in Birmingham, but migrated to Canada with his parents at the age of five.

Brandy returned to Britain - so much for immigration controls - and raped the three women as well as beating another one.

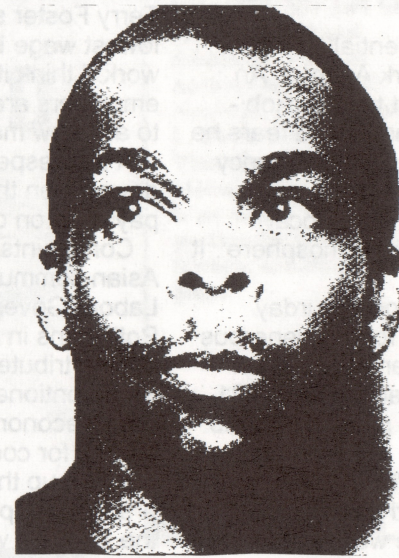

The first victim was a 39-year-old from Bethnal Green, the girlfriend of one of his associates.

He then obtained access to a 26-year-old's home by pretending to be from the post office. He told the victim: "Take a good look at me". She later picked him out at an identity parade.

Finally, he raped a student from London Guildhall University after forcing his way into her home. He said "You are going to be a difficult one" when she struggled. The victim now rarely goes out and has moved away.

Evil Brandy is a fitness fanatic, who does 700 press-ups every day in his cell. Judge Rogers, who took Brandy's trial, dismissed a plea for mercy from the defence counsel Brian Barker, who said his client was a slave to drink, drugs, and an uncontrollable temper.

Detective Inspector John McCullough, of Bethnal Green police, said: "The victims of his horrendous crimes are devastated. They are still having counselling, and it is part of the treatment to see him finally put away".

PAUL BRANDY: multiple rapist

● A gang of Bosnian children, some only eight years old, is running wild on a spree of robbery in the Black Country, and police say they are powerless.

The gang is well known to police, after robbing old people and shops from Smethwick to the Merry Hill shopping centre near Dudley.

Superintendent Mike Harrison, of Smethwick Police said the gang cannot be prosecuted because they speak no English and claim to be refugees.

"They are mostly teenagers" he said "but some are as young as eight, and there are major problems, since they have no documentation and no birth certificates."

"We have people who speak Bosnian, but the problem is dialects. They are getting away with blue murder, and realise they have carte blanche to commit crimes. When we catch them they are extremely aggressive". So much for Tory 'law and order'.

HOMELESS FORCED OUT OF DEWSBURY

HOMELESS locals are being forced out of their hometown because there is nowhere for them to stay.

Dewsbury local whites have been told by Shelter that the situation may be even worse in a year, and that they might have to move just about anywhere if legislation proposed by the Tories is introduced.

The local Kirklees Council is notorious for its policy of 'Asians first'. As in so many other places, the council sees immigrants as its future voters. The policy is to get the whites out and destroy their communities - hence no housing for locals.

BLAIR MOVING TO POSHER AREA

Labour Party leader Tony Blair is thought to be about to move house - possibly to ultra-chic and super expensive Notting Hill.

The Blairs are said privately to admit that the flagship 'socialist paradise' of Islington is unpleasant to live in, with massive crime, a huge council tax, and dreadful schools.

The family has been burgled three times, and recently decided to send their son to the well-thought-of Oratory School in Fulham - not, of course, because of the quality of multi-racial Islington schools - not publicly anyway.

Islington Council is famous for its town hall bust of Lenin, and red flag flying over the council chamber.

There was a massive scandal recently when it was discovered that homosexual staff had been assaulting children in the council's homes, and that no one would take action for fear of being thought 'politically incorrect'.

DON'T LET RACIST LOW LIFE SPOIL OUR LOVELY TOWN

THE sick British National Party are trying to promote themselves in Dumbarton district, but they will not do it through the pages of this newspaper.
This is the last time we will mention the group of hateful racists who try to hide behind the democratic rights of a political Reporter this weekend we will not ignore them. Ignorance is dangerous and although we pride ourselves on being a publication without bias, on this occasion we make an exception.

The group say they are working towards having a sub-organiser in every housing estate in the district, they plan to field a candidate in the next election and intend to leaflet the district, but the community of Dumbarton district should not let themselves be pawns in the BNP's ruthless game.
This small group of people inciting hatred in our otherwise caring community should be treated with the contempt and the Vale of Leven MUST NOT be brainwashed by their mindless and incompetent claims.

In our democratic society everyone has a right to their opinion, but democracy was designed to give everyone the freedom to live in peace - not to be terrorised because of their race, colour or religion.
A spokesman for the Dumbarton branch of the Scottish National Party told the Reporter: "The SNP utterly condemns the attitude of organisations such as the BNP that the colour social or personal for discrimination in any form whatsoever in our society.

"The SNP are delighted to embrace any colour, creed or religion as such diversity of the Scottish people is of great benefit to the social and cultural identity of our nation."
"Such claims by the BNP of standing in Dumbarton have been made before, however, these views have to be taken seriously. If a candidate was to stand in the next general election then I have no doubt that the SNP candidate, whoever it may be, will refuse to share a public platform with an organisation which encourages such racial tension."
The common sense of our own politicians continues with a statement from the Conservative: "We think they are a most despicable lot. They should not be tolerated, should not be listened to and should certainly not be voted for."
Dumbarton and Clydebank Labour Group are urging Dumbarton People to unite against racism in an annual demonstration on Saturday, organised by the STUC, meeting in Glasgow's Blythswood Square at 10.30am.
A spokesman said: "This is support for these foul ideas in Dumbarton, I commend the Reporter for the stance they are taking.

"If someone did have the guts to stand in Dumbarton it would be the Labour Party's position that we would not share a platform with them, that is party policy. This is especially sick at a time when we are coming up to the 50th anniversary of the end of the second world war, there was no support for their views then and there is certainly no support now."
Our schools should continue to teach the true meaning of democracy so that our country stops producing these hate-filled sad people who for some very strange reason seem to think they are better than everyone else.
We have a message for the BNP. YOU are in the minority and a very small one at that. The majority of people in our district will have the sense to dispose of your leaflets and your propaganda, which is exactly what the Reporter will be doing.
And if the BNP are so sure that they are right, why are they hiding themselves away without even the guts to meet in party from meeting in their buildings and halls.

No other political party keeps its membership secret and perhaps that says a lot about the BNP.
The Reporter could not even contact the Dumbarton group for a quote because they will not reveal the identity of the members they claim to have in our area.
Last year Dumbarton District Council opted to support research work into race and poverty and agreed not to let the BNP use their buildings because their literature was offensive to the public.
The beliefs and policies of the BNP would offend anyone who believes in true justice and

TO THE POINT

A question - what has politically happened in Western Europe since the fall of the Berlin Wall? During the last five years, something about politics has changed. The change is felt by everybody - even if it has not been named - felt not exactly as despair, but more modestly, as a kind of hopelessness. This produces boredom, indifference, and finally violence. What has happened?

The profession of politics is now to create not political debate, but a diversion. Their speaking heads have become decoys. This is what has changed in Europe during the last five years. Why did it happen?

Until the end of the Cold War, and the collapse of the Soviet System, the capitalist system needed politics to enlist the rest of the world in its struggle to eliminate any alternative future to the one it was itself proposing. It needed words like Freedom, and Democracy, and Justice, which entail politics.

Today the situation is different, the free market became overnight the triumphant global system. Now everything can finally be bought or sold by those who have the means (among the means is control of the media). This power is more or less concentrated in the hands of the 200 largest multinational enterprises. Country's lives are changed, destroying local agriculture and communities, increasing unemployment, and destroying social welfare.

As this global plan advances it increasingly demands a global depoliticisation. Otherwise, the protests of the suffering majority may become too insistent. So the future of the globe, politicians repeat on the doorstep, cannot be politically debated, for it is simply the subject of a natural law. Millions are threatened. In the face of all this suffering, the decoys, with their empty words, are as if speechless.
Nobody knows what resisting the global market operation will involve, what forms of resistance will work best. It is too soon, for only five years have passed.

What is sure that this is the point where the denied politics will begin again in the next millennia - or perhaps have already begun.

John Berger - Observer December 17 1995

Better to economise with the historical truth than perpetuate racial antagonism. If this sounds disturbingly like a dissent into political correctness, let me make the same point more robustly. To allow oneself to be blamed unfairly for colour prejudice is the gentlemanly thing to do, the last stage, if you like, of the white mans' burden.

Peregrine Worsthorne - Sunday Telegraph December 10 1995

When homosexual behaviour was a criminal offence, its incidence was much less intrusive. Today it is paraded in public, celebrated in parts of the media, promoted as a legitimate alternative lifestyle.

Since society abandoned its official mark of disapproval, homosexual practices have become almost fashionable. A curious outcome indeed for a reform once described as part of the 'civilised' society.

So many have embraced the 'right' to self-fulfillment. They live to enjoy themselves. Sadly they seldom want to live in order to make the times good.

The consequences are plain to see. So much human unhappiness.

Former Chief Rabbi Lord Jakobovits - Daily Mail December 14 1995

If we dumped all the fascists in the North Sea, we could find room for a few more Chinese to immigrate.

MEDIA GAMES! The Dumbarton Reporter devotes its entire front page to telling readers that the BNP will receive no publicity in their columns - or at least never again (until the next time). According to this lot of old tosh filled with epithets like sickening, the BNP is 'hiding behind the democratic rights of a political party'. Meaning - you have no rights unless you support the destruction of your own country. We must be making an impact in Scotland to receive publicity like this. Well done the new Dumbarton Unit!

More giant mosques on way

ONE THOUSAND Muslims will soon be making a daily visit to Morden if plans for yet another huge mosque are approved. The mosque will be built on the site of the Express Dairy in London Road, Morden (pictured right).

The new building with minaret will accommodate, among others, Muslims from a group in Putney, and will include TV studios, halls, a library, and offices. The whole site of the former dairy covers five acres.

If Morden Council gives permission for the mosque it will employ 200 people, but have only 93 car parking spaces for both staff and visitors. One resident, who declined to be named, said: "It could alter the whole of Morden. I feel quite sick." Another resident said that there would be no parking spaces left for locals.

Spokesman for the mosque Nasser Khan said: "We want to provide something special for Morden. We want to actively involve the local community, not cut ourselves off."

A phone-in poll by a local newspaper showed a majority to be opposed to the mosque plan, but BN can confidently say that the scheme will go ahead whatever the views of local people.

●Plans to build two temples and a mosque in Hamilton are being secretly forwarded by Leicester City Council - despite claims that they had been shelved. The council plans to sell land at Manor Farm, Hamilton, at a 50% subsidy, to allow the building of Hindu and Sikh temples, and a mosque.

When the plans were unveiled in 1994, 500 letters of objection were sent to the council, and a 5,500 signature petition presented to councillors. Two Conservative councillors resigned after opposing the scheme, but were re-elected after a by-election.

The council's planning department now say that the temple and mosque proposal has not been shelved, but more information is being sought.

One of the councillors who resigned, Roman Scuplak, says that the council will reintroduce the scheme "when they are less likely to be damaged politically."

In East London, angry locals have been told at a residents' meeting that the proposed 100' tall Beckton Mosque (November BN) could not be discussed. All over the country giant mosque schemes are being got through by similar underhand tactics.

●Drunken worshippers and loud music at a Sikh temple, with a public entertainment licence, are driving residents to distraction. Dudley Council's licensing sub-committee nevertheless ignored local complaints recently and renewed the 'temple's' licence - despite objections by neighbours.

Locals living around Wellington Road, Dudley, say they are constantly abused and intimidated by people using the building. Driveways are blocked by cars, litter dropped, and windows have to be kept shut because of cooking smells and the racket.

The music is so loud that one long standing resident, Elsie Bladen, said she would not be able to hear her TV without shutting her windows, and that she was sworn at.

Another resident, Terry Wilshaw, said: "It's intolerable - everyone's fed up. They have music blasting out most weekends. At 8.30 one morning there was a band banging drums outside my home. They stagger around at night after having too much to drink."

A temple spokesman said that the residents were 'jealous'. The licensing committee has ordered music to be kept down, and no food or drink taken out.

BN BRIEFING

FIGHTING TANKENGINISM!

A new form of 'political incorrectness' is hitting Britain.

Shortly before Xmas the BNP's Press Officer was contacted by the media, and asked to comment on the following story. A young white child in Liverpool had visited a toyshop, and, seeing a copy of a book about Tank Engine Thomas, complained that there were no black engines in the story.

BN says - stop the tankenginism!

NEVER NEVER LAND

During the David Ashby libel trial, the Sunday Times' barrister - defending a complaint that the newspaper had falsely described the Tory MP as homosexual - said that it was no longer defamatory to call someone a homosexual. "We live in more enlightened times" said Richard Hartley QC.

The fact of the matter is that most people have a visceral dislike of homosexuality - and being falsely believed to be one is, in the real world, severely damaging.

In the never never land now being built by liberals, however, it will soon be possible to wreck a career with a false accusation of homosexuality, and for the victim to have no redress, since we are all supposed to pretend that it makes no difference.

BRAIN DAMAGE

Research at Warwick University has shown that happy people display similar reasoning strategies to those with damage to the frontal lobes of the brain.

Angry miserable people reason much better, says Dr. Mike Oakstead, who led the research. Students, used as guinea pigs, could not think clearly after watching ITV's 'It'll be Alright on the Night'.

Anyone who is happy about the state of Britain today must be suffering from some kind of brain failure!

A NEW YEAR MESSAGE FROM BERNIE AND MICK...

Hi!

Me and my mates Bernie and Mick have started a new nationalist group: "Essex Storm Front - Shock Group Adolf Hitler". Sounds really good dunnit?

We're elite we are, and with a name like that everyone knows it. We've got these stickers we put up, so everyone knows like.

We used to be in the BNP, but we left it like. All that leafletting and talking to people - canvassing they called it. Christ, what a bore!

We don't leaflet, we don't canvass, and we definitely don't talk to the people. We just talk to our mates. It means our security is ultra-tight!

Of course, it means we don't do much anymore, and we don't recruit anyone either, but that's the price that's got to be paid if you're going to be ultra hard-line and elite like us.

Also now we don't go leafletting, it means we can't get recognised or jumped by the lefties - not that we're afraid of them like. I mean, we're the elite! But having said that, you can't be too careful can you?

Bernie wanted us to have uniforms, but I said to him, "We're not Hollywood Nazis you know." Honestly, what a prat. We've got these excellent baseball caps instead!

Sometimes, when we see BNP members we tell 'em, "We're national socialists we are. We're elite."

Some cheeky new bloke with them told us to piss off, and that we were never any use anyway. Practically called me a coward! He was lucky he was with two of his mates I can tell you!

We're not interested in elections and democracy. It's all a waste of time, and, in any case, no one would vote for us anyway. That's because the people are stupid and useless, and that's why we don't want to know them. It's all fixed.

The other thing about the BNP is that it was too high profile. Everyone was on you. The reds, the establishment, the press, the TV, etc. The scrutiny and the pressure were just too much.

It's easier now we're out of it. We can take things easy like. No one knows about us now and we get left alone. We just talk to our mates and have secret meetings. Where the country will be in five or ten years time I don't know. But at least we'll be able to say "told you so!"

Don't get the impression we don't do anything though. We go to football and jeer the black players in the other team (shame about our blacks though), and, until it was banned, we used to 'Sieg Heil' them. That showed the bastards!

The other week we ran through the town centre with balaclavas "zieg heiling" the shoppers - what a laugh - it almost got in the papers!

Nearly every week or so we go round to Bernie's with a few cans and listen to his CD and record collection. And of course, we never miss a gig.

So don't tell me we do nothing. It's not a cop-out. We do plenty!

If BN readers are lucky Bernie and Mick may be back soon with more advice on saving Britain

Anne Frank exhibition storm

A PUBLIC ROW has broken out within Reading Council after a Conservative councillor called a planned exhibition about the life of Anne Frank "a waste of money". Councillor Fred Pugh said that stories about Nazi atrocities should not be "dragged up again".

Deputy Leader Martin Salter told a meeting of the council that Mr. Pugh had worn a 'Keep Rhodesia White' T-shirt at a multi-racial playscheme in 1974, and that he made no secret of his then links to the National Front.

"Councillors have been sent racist filth, including suggestions that fewer than a quarter million were killed in the two major concentration camps, rather than four million. This is the sort of reaction your stupid racist comments have triggered".

Tory and Labour councillors united in condemning Councillor Pugh, who then apologised for giving any offence. A motion to remove him from the Community Development Committee, where his remarks were made, was withdrawn.

Councillor Salter said he had passed on leaflets he had received to the police. "I don't want any more half-truths through my door" he said.

The museum at Auschwitz recently publicly admitted that the building shown to tourists as a gas chamber is a fake built after the war.

HANG CHILD MURDERERS!

The vast majority of people agree that the death penalty should be reintroduced for child killers. Yet neither Conservatives, Labour nor Liberal Democrats are prepared to back such a move. Peter Hain, the Tory MP, is supposed to represent the people. But the do-gooders who sit in Government are more concerned with the rights of murderers than with the safety of our children. Sick child killers are kept in prison, often in relative luxury and at vast expense, until such time as they can be killed again. Others such as those of Brady and Myra Hindley are a constant reminder to the tragic parents of their victims. All those like Brady who have given the right to life to a murderer they took a young life. With more and more of these cases occurring it is time for the death penalty to be reintroduced, a move which allows the killer to live. If children to live is morally bankrupt. Only the British National Party is committed to the reintroduction of the

NEW HANTS & DORSET UNIT ESTABLISHED

A NEW BNP UNIT in Hants & Dorset has now been formed, and a box number opened at BCM ANGEL, London WC1N 3XX.

During the closing months of 1995 three 'Days of Action' were held in the Bournemouth area - cementing the branch's presence.

During November a very successful first branch meeting was held in Poole. Dr. Stevens addressed over 30 people who attended on the subject of 'Unity among Nationalists' - and a very fine talk it was.

The other speaker was BN editor John Morse, whose presence provided a real boost, and was very much appreciated by the branch.

A social will be held very early in the new year as the next event. Areas like that covered by Hants & Dorset Unit were once impossible in which for the BNP to make inroads - yet a recent paper sale in Wimborne ran out of BN's.

BN apologises for the delay in covering the new branch - owing to the sheer volume of material which needs to be covered in our newspaper.

Well done Hants & Dorset Unit!

INTERNET NEWS

The BNP's Web Site is now becoming widely seen and known about - as the number of enquiries from university students indicates.

The content is gradually being expanded, with extra items being added every month. The monthly cartoon in BN is now appearing on-line. There is continuous publicity for the site, and the BNP, within uk.politics - the main internet discussion newsgroup on British politics.

All BNP units are asked to include the address of our site, given below, on leaflets and newsletters they produce. It must be copied exactly - even a full stop different will prevent its use.

One of the largest UK providers of access to the Internet has seen its number of subscribers alone rocket from 70,000 to 200,000 in the last year. Millions will soon be able to read BN on the Internet in Britain alone - if they know the electronic address!

YOUR LETTERS

Write to: The Editor, British Nationalist, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW

Sir:

I think it was Karl Marx who droned on about the 'inherent contradictions' of capitalism, and how they would lead inevitably to its collapse.

I can remember when this analysis was all the rage amongst liberal left-wing intellectuals, but now it seems they have turned away from this towards the soft option ideas of liberal 'do-goodism' of one sort or another.

Who knows, maybe they have got capitalistic beat, but if so what makes them think this is the only liberal concept that's so full of 'inherent contradictions' that its days are numbered.

I was thinking in particular of multiculturalism, a notion so self-contradictory it is its own refutation. The precariousness of this piece of liberal wishful thinking was illustrated by Mr. Iqbal Siddiqui, a member of the Muslim parliament in London, who was quoted in the Sunday Telegraph (December 4) as saying:

"The entire secular ethos of the state education system is contradictory to many parts of Islam. In the process of getting a good education, our children are being indoctrinated in aspects of western culture and we don't like it."

It's not unusual for such as ourselves to question the legitimacy (and sanity) of a new 'multicultural society', but when those for whom the structure was created themselves begin to attack that structure, well, isn't that what is meant and an example of 'inherent contradictions'.

Mr. P. Buckden, Dewsbury, W. Yorkshire

Sir:

I recently acquired a BNP information pack (I am not a member), and in the pack was a copy of July's BN.

I noticed on page six an item about L'Express magazine of Paris which has published a claim that the gas chamber at Auschwitz is a fake. This has resulted in the sort of commotion which usually follows an event of this kind.

In this connection you may be interested in the article which appeared by David Cesarani in the Guardian newspaper supplement of November 29 1993.

In the article Cesarani admits that the gas chamber, and crematorium chimney, at Auschwitz were both built in 1948, on the site of a war-time air raid shelter.

He tries to claim that in 1941 a gas chamber occupied the site before the building of the air raid shelter. He supplies no evidence for this. I am sure many people, not least myself, would be interested in any convincing evidence he could produce.

There are other interesting statements in Cesarani's article; some frankly incredible, others revealing in a way he did not intend.

It is rather surprising that Cesarani (surely one of the world's foremost Holocaust propagandists) went into print with this admission.

Perhaps he reasoned that relatively few people read the Guardian, and fewer still read right through the turgid articles. In this way, he may have thought, he could write the truth and nobody would notice.

Mr. A. Butterfield, London W12

Sir:

May I take this opportunity to congratulate the organisers of the BNP rally on November 11, who made sure it went ahead despite severe pressure from the establishment to stop it.

As an Islington area supporter I would like to know if you might field a candidate in the South Islington constituency at the general election.

I understand we have a candidate for Holborn & St Pancras, and that candidacy is already funded. I am willing to advance £200 towards the costs in Islington.

I believe the BNP will gain lots of support, and also wind-up all the media 'luvvies' who reside in Islington - Blair and Hodge, to name but two.

'Islington BNP supporter', London

Sir:

What happened to 'British grit'? We no longer stand up but lay down

BNP PROSCRIPTION OF COMBAT 18: REMINDER AND CLARIFICATION

Two years ago, the leadership of the British National Party issued a proscription order against the organisation known as 'Combat 18'. It is necessary to issue a reminder that this proscription is still in force and, in addition, to upgrade it, and clarify what it means.

First, the upgrading: henceforth the proscription on Combat 18 will extend to cover also a body known as the 'National Socialist Alliance', which is, to all intents and purposes, the same organisation.

The proscription on both these bodies means the following:-

(1) That no member of the BNP may also be a member of either Combat 18 or the National Socialist Alliance.

(2) That no persons known to be members of Combat 18 or the NSA may attend BNP meetings or any other activities or events organised by the BNP.

(3) That no items of literature published by, in support of, or in any other way connected with Combat 18 or the NSA may be distributed at BNP meetings or at any other activities or events organised by the BNP.

(4) That no member of the BNP may attend any meetings or any other events, activities, or functions connected with either Combat 18 or the NSA or with any individuals prominently associated with either Combat 18 or the NSA.

(5) That no member of the BNP may partake in any activity which, directly or indirectly, serves to promote, assist or further the interests of either Combat 18 or the NSA.

Any member of the BNP who is known to have acted in contravention of these directives will be considered to have committed an act of disloyalty to the party and will be liable to disciplinary action, which may go as far as expulsion from the party.

These proscriptions, and the directives covering them, have been instituted for very good reasons. Combat 18 and the National Socialist Alliance are both bodies implacably hostile to the BNP, and have worked ceaselessly over the past two or three years to inflict the maximum damage upon it. The party expects these proscriptions to be obeyed and these directives rigidly observed.

By order of BNP party leader JOHN TYNDALL to be used as a door mat by the entire world.

I, for one, have had enough, and decided to stand up and be counted. It's time we were heard as a people again. There is only one party with the nerve to speak out where others tremble.

I hope others may read this, who are undecided on whether to join the party, and now be more positive.

We're white and we're right!
Mr. M.J. Morris, Stanmore, Middx

Sir:

I see our ridiculous courts recently allowed Devon Malcolm to winge about Wisden's article about race and sport. These judges seem as transfixed with fear of black people as our craven politicians.

I personally see little evidence that many of our English sportsmen play for any other reason than personal glorification, and especially the vast rewards in their pocket.

I would play for nothing myself, but I am a 'real' Englishman.

I do not understand how a Jamaican can be allowed to play for England, and, more to the point, why should he want to? If our judges went to see matches where the West Indians play, and see who the 'English' West Indians support, they might well wonder how committed they are to the English cause.

I would have thought that a lesson could be learnt from the grotesque US multiracial fiasco. They have trodden the path we have been forced to take without discussion.

Many of us would like to say much of what Louis Farrakhan says about race.

Mr. O.W. Dickerson, Stamford, Lincs

Sir:

Please find enclosed 1,000 Belgian francs to renew my subscription to BN. If there is any over please accept it as a donation.

Your excellent paper is passed round here in Antwerp, and is finally sent to Greece to be read by a Greek nationalist police officer who has friends in Britain.

Our only complaint is that it only comes out once each month. Weekly would be better!

Philippe and Catherine Van der Sende, Belgium

Our 50 seat election campaign

Last August's decision by the British National Party, to contest 50 seats at the next General Election, is going to propel the BNP into a position of vastly increased strength and vitality.

Millions of pounds worth of publicity will be won on TV, radio, in the press, and, perhaps even more importantly, up to 2 million pieces of up-to-date, high-quality election literature will go out in the biggest recruiting drive the party has ever seen! This will result in thousands of enquiries, and a massive growth in members.

The decision to fight 50 seats was not made lightly. There were three options available: to fight no seats at all, and spend the money on something else; to fight a limited number of seats and maximise our vote thereby; or to fight a 50-seat campaign and qualify for broadcasting time.

In 1983, the party fought 54 seats to qualify for a TV party political broadcast. It was a huge effort for our then very small party, and one made only because the BNP's very political existence depended upon it, in what was a very sad time of fractious political strife with the National Front.

In the General Election of 1987, the party abstained, recognising that public support for nationalism was almost nil. The party wisely spent its money elsewhere - for instance stocking up its building fund to furnish and equip what is probably one of the best known bookshops in Britain!

Nothing, however, enthuses party members and activists like a General Election, and for this purpose money will be put forward that would not otherwise see the light of day. It is not true to say that all the money available for the General Election could be spent elsewhere, since it would not otherwise be so readily forthcoming!

In the General Election of 1992, the BNP fought 13 seats, including two in Tower Hamlets, to further the successful community-based 'Rights for Whites' campaigns in the area.

Later that year of course, Barry Osborne polled 20 per cent of the vote in Millwall and we all know what happened after that!

£4,000,000

Why then exactly was the 50 seat campaign launched? In one word recruitment. We want recruits and we want them in big numbers. The British National Party is aiming for growth on a scale not seen since the massive membership boost after Millwall.

The general public's consciousness of us will also be boosted by our 50-seat campaign. Such an effort is sure to be newsworthy and commented upon. With a TV broadcast, we will leave our calling card in the minds of millions.

The broadcast will be on all four channels. To buy five minutes on the ITV network alone would cost about £1,500,000. On Channel 4, five minutes' advertising would cost £500,000. If BBC1 and 2 were able to do the same, that would be another £2,000,000. Total cost: £4,000,000. And that's without taking into account the radio.

Then there is the absolutely key benefit of fighting a parliamentary election - the free delivery, by the Post Office, of every candidate's election address.

For the BNP's 50-plus candidates, that is going to work out at nearly two million leaflets in one fell swoop. On a commercial basis we would, for 50 seats, ordinarily have to pay £62,000 for the Post Office to deliver our election addresses.

This leaflet distribution is guaranteed by law, and there is nothing that the extreme left can do about it short of nobbling every postman.

TRAWL

For the probable £50,000 the election will cost the party, the BNP will be recouping that amount in leaflet distribution costs alone, and gaining literally millions of pounds worth of publicity.

We will conduct a massive trawl for a new generation of young recruits, and indeed some not so young, who have finally realised that if salvation is to come, only the British National Party can provide it.

Such a trawl has not been conducted since 1983, and the waters were then largely barren, and the net only partially effective. This time the waters are swarming, and we will be using the best net yet from a much bigger boat.

Following the party's loss of Millwall, there was a small exodus of members and supporters which contributed to a loss of morale.

There was really no need for this. Examination of the people who left reveals that the party simply shed in one

JOIN THE PARTY!

This year will probably be the last full year before the next General Election. Help the party carry on the fight against our nation's enemies and join us!

Rates are the same as last year: £20 a year with a 50 per cent discount available for OAPs., full-time students and the unemployed.

All current member's subscriptions are due for renewal as from the 1st of January. Don't delay, send off today!

Every member's subscription goes towards maintaining the party's infrastructure, keeping it functioning and making it more effective.

The BNP is leading the fight for the British way of life, and showing the British people that one party does speak for them - the British National Party!

At the next General Election, the BNP will attract more votes than ever before and recruit more new members than ever before, making the BNP stronger than ever before. Make it happen!

Join the party, build for victory!

go its dress - fair weather friends, cranks, cultists, and misfits.

We can say good riddance, because we don't want 'support' like that!

The immediate aftermath of the election will leave the party stronger than ever before, and better equipped to face the new challenges that will follow in the last few remaining years of this century.

The new dawn approaches.

Tomorrow belongs to us!

EMERGENCY APPEAL TARGET NOW £1,789.00

Last month contributions to the special emergency appeal, launched in April by the British National Party, came to £704.00. This still leaves £1,789.00 still to be raised. We take this opportunity to thank all donors for their generosity. There is still, however, quite a long way to go to meet the £20,000 target. Please help us to reach the target early in the new year.

For the future, all those sending in money should address it to: BNP General Fund, and post it to: c/o PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW. We draw everyone's attention to the rule that receipts are only sent for donations of £10 or over unless specifically requested, in which case an SAE would be appreciated.

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the European Community: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties.
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of Government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of the fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people - the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO; closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain; British withdrawal from the war in former Yugoslavia, where no British interest is at stake; the bringing home of British forces from Germany; the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, and the termination of the Anglo-Irish agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- A return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
